Course Description

This course focuses on building the capacity of educators in the early childhood field to be able to respond to the unique needs of children who are dual language learners (DLLs), birth to age 5. It makes connections between research-based effective practices, program policies, and broader societal systems with the goal of enabling educators to positively adapt their everyday classroom interactions and environments. The course emphasizes gaining a deep understanding of language and literacy development of children who are DLLs, in addition to an understanding of strategies that can be used to support learning in any content area.

Nationwide, 32% of children birth to age 5 are considered dual language learners (Weyer, 2018). Rapid growth of this segment of the population in most areas of the United States creates a need for educators to expand and enhance their knowledge of child development and teaching strategies to include an understanding of first and second language acquisition, cross-cultural awareness, and DLL curricular supports. In this course you will be encouraged to actively engage in learning as a critical thinker and reader of a variety of materials that will serve you for the duration of your career. Observing and working with children who are DLLs and their families are a primary means through which application will be taught. During these times, you will have access to support from your instructor as well as fellow course participants.

Objectives

Participants will:

1. Learn to implement effective teaching strategies based on research and theory in first and second language development, cross-cultural awareness, and curricular supports for children who are DLLs.
2. Internalize, evaluate, and use evidence-based research, resources, and practices to facilitate the growth and abilities of children who are DLLs, ages birth to 5.
3. Apply knowledge and skills to implement individualized, specific strategies that promote the growth and abilities of children who are DLLs in all early learning domains to promote school readiness and long-term success.

In order to develop these professional abilities, participants in the course will read about, discuss, and use:

Foundational knowledge of:

- Demographics of children who are DLLs and how current demographics affect assessment and teaching practices.
- The importance of continued home language development in children who are DLLs.
- Screening and assessment processes and tools commonly used to evaluate the language skills and knowledge of children who are DLLs.
- The role of culture in building relationships with families and providing relatable and sustaining content for early learning.

Application of knowledge to:

- Partner with families who speak a language, or languages, other than English to use their home language(s) to help their children learn to listen, speak, read, and write in their home language(s) and in English.
- Create language-rich classroom environments in which children's code-switching, word mixing, and translanguaging are acknowledged, supported, and used to promote continuous English and home language learning in young children who are DLLs.
- Develop, implement, and evaluate effective lessons, teaching strategies, and play-based instructional experiences designed to facilitate early English and continuous home language development every day for children who are DLLs, birth to age five.

Grading

Participation/Professionalism	25%
Reading Reflections	15%
CORP Feedback	20%
Video Assignments	20%
Remaining Assignments	20%

Expectations

Participation/Professionalism (25%: Grading per Instructor)

You are expected to come to class prepared to discuss any assigned readings and to actively engage during classroom activities and discussions.

Reading Reflections (15%: Grading per Instructor)

In this course, you will complete required readings. At times, you will synthesize your thoughts from the readings in reflection assignments. Guiding questions will be offered for each reading reflection. Reading reflections will be assessed on quality, which includes but is not limited to, addressing the guiding questions, conciseness, and specificity in regard to making connections with course content.

Supporting Children Who Are Dual Language Learners

CORP Feedback (20%: Grading per Instructor)

Given that thoughtfully adaptive teaching of oral and written language to a diverse group of children is complex, educators cannot do it alone. Throughout the course you will video record yourself working with children and their family. You will then share your videos in Communities of Reflection and Practice (CORP) where your peers and instructors will provide support and feedback to help you improve your practice. Your participation in this group is meant to help you form personal connections with one another, facilitate high-level collaboration, and improve your ability to provide coach quality feedback to yourself and peers. Quality of feedback must include a loving critique and an affirming comment (i.e. what can be improved and what your peer did well).

Video Assignments (20%: Grading per assignment rubric)

In this course, you will complete assignments that are very practitioner oriented. These help you build your portfolio of resources for your work as an educator. Examples include lesson plans, self-and program reflections, and environmental assessments. These assignments help bridge theory to practice. Each session includes assignments designed to help course participants enhance their knowledge about oral and written language development and communication in young children who are DLLs. In addition, these assignments will help participants apply their knowledge to help each child, in partnership with the child's family members, develop oral and written language abilities and become an effective communicator.

Remaining Assignments (20%: Grading per assignment rubric)

In this course, you will complete a variety of assignments including but not limited to filling out a profile for your child who is a DLL, creating a list of commitments to families, and intentional lesson planning. Each assignment will have accompanying guidelines and a rubric. Assignments will be assessed by certain qualities, including but not limited to referencing information from class, consideration of family and child voices, and attention to detail through observation and listening to such voices.

Note on Video Recording

As noted above, in some assignments participants are asked to video record classroom interactions, review video footage, and edit several small clips for the instructor and peers to view. Instructors will include guidance for this process by providing training and detailed guides for video recording and editing for use with the EarlyEdU Coaching Companion.

Time Estimations

(Note: Institutions will need to update this section as required. Initial text is provided; institutions will need to provide all their own details here).

The estimated time commitment for each session is 5-8 hours. This estimates that you will spend a total of 3 hours working "in class" (instructor to provide specifics on their class schedule) and an additional 2-5 hours of readings and assignments out of class. These are estimations. Some sessions may include assignments that require more than 5 hours out of class (e.g., completing the planning, video, reflecting, and feedback cycles) while others may take less. Additionally, some participants may complete assignments more quickly than others. Some participants may review readings and videos multiple times and spend more time on their assignments. There is no exact time designation; you are encouraged to communicate with your instructor for any questions on due dates, extensions, and workload.

Accommodations

(Note: Institutions will need to update this section as required. Initial text is provided; institutions will need to provide all their own details here).

We want you to have the best possible experience in this class. At the (your institution), we aim to create inclusive and accessible learning environments consistent with federal and state law. If you experience barriers, please seek a meeting with (Insert the department or person at your institution responsible for special accommodations) to discuss and address them. If you have already established accommodations with that office, please inform your instructor about the approved accommodations as soon as possible so we can discuss your needs in this course.

Course Authors

This course was collaboratively developed by the following consultants and writers:

- Karen Nemeth, Ed.M., Senior Training/Technical Assistance Specialist for DLLs, National Center for Early Childhood Development, Teaching, and Learning
- Dr. Soojin Oh Park, Assistant Professor in Early Childhood and Family Studies, University of Washington College of Education
- Dr. Cricket Limlingan, Research Scientist, University of Washington
- Cynthia I. Palomino, Ed.S., Ph.D. Candidate, Learning Sciences & Human Development
- Kayla Chui, Doctoral student at University of Washington
- Anna McAloon, M.Ed., Content Developer at University of Washington

Course Schedule

Session 1: Frameworks and Foundations
Introductions, Objectives, and Course Overview	Video Assignment- Self-Introduction	Self-Introduction: Practice making and uploading a video to introduce yourself to the class.
High-Quality Early Childhood Education  Intentional Teaching	Assignment- Reading Reflection	Reflect on the concepts of “developmentally appropriate practice”, being an “intentional” teacher, and the Head Start Early Learning Outcomes Framework as they relate to your everyday work.
Definition of Dual Language Learner	Assignment- Parent Permission Media Release Forms	Distribute film permission slips to families and staff. Collect all to be prepared to start filming.

Session 2: First and Second Language Development
DLL Characteristics Demographics and Trends Oral Language Development Stages of Language Development Second Language Acquisition Code switching, word mixing, and translanguaging	Assignment- Case Study Part 1: Gathering Data	Throughout the course, participants will be building a case study of a child who is a dual language learner. The process of putting together the case study will show participants how to gather information about a child, intentionally prepare lessons that meet the unique needs of the child who is a DLL, engage the family, and use assessment to guide instruction.  Data Gathering: Choose a child who is a dual language learner who you will work with throughout the course.  Complete a dual language learner profile for this child. Ensure that you have their signed Parent Permission Media Release form since you will have to film the child and yourself with the child throughout the course.
	Assignment- CORP Response	Comment on at least 1 CORP members' post. Respond to at least 1 comment made on your posts. Comments and responses should follow the guidelines in the assignment handout.

Session 10: Being an Educator-Advocate
Self-Reflection	Assignment- Case Study Part 6: Final Reflection	Compile all the information you have gathered about your child.
Program Reflection		Write an in-depth reflection (800-1,000 words) on what you have learned from working with your child and the child's family, insights you may have gained about your own teaching, and major goal(s) you want to improve upon moving forward.
Creating Critical Questions
Federal Policies
Recommended State Standards
Educators as Advocates
	Finally, list at least 3 critical reflection questions on what you'd still like to learn to better support children who are DLLs.
	Optional Assignment- Child Observation Using Critical Questions	Observe your student who is a DLL in your program for about 30 minutes. Develop at least 3 critical questions that come up during the observation.
	Assignment- CORP Response	Post on CORP and respond to at least 1 CORP members' comments on your post. Comment on at least 1 CORP members' posts (try to comment on a CORP members' post that does not have any comments yet).
